

Teaching languages can be HARD. Not just for learners, but for us, too. Making ourselves understood all day while ensuring they are immersed, engaged and acquiring languages is A LOT.

Games that keep learners practicing the target language do a lot of the heavy lifting for us.

I did an experiment with AI last year to see if it could make a board game. It isn't perfect (it has some English), but considering my time investment, it will do.

Get some dice and some counters. When your beginners need a bit of extra practice, try this game.
